OPENING ADDRESS: SENATOR RICHARD DOWLING

Richard Dowling is an Australian economist and politician, who is currently serving as a Labor Senator for Tasmania since 1 July 2025. Richard was educated in Tasmania's public school system and studied economics at UTAS while completing a cadetship at the State Treasury. This grounding saw him become Chief Economist of the TCCI and Senior Economic Adviser to former Tasmanian Premier Lara Giddings. Richard has worked across economics, government, and global technology firms, and was active in the Australian Workers' Union. Richard also completed his MBA in the United Kingdom, with a dissertation on clean energy innovation.

MC: ARIA RITZ

Aria is a proud Palawa woman and law student at RMIT Melbourne. She is a passionate advocate for Aboriginal rights, truth-telling, and justice, with experience as a public speaker, workshop co-facilitator, and MC.

KEYNOTE: ADONGWOT MANYOUL, CREATING CULTURALLY INCLUSIVE WORKPLACES

Adongwot Manyoul is a Churchill Fellow, communications specialist, and cultural consultant whose expertise spans media, government advisory, and organisational development. Her international research explores how Western societies integrate African diaspora communities, informing her work in transforming diversity and inclusion practices across government, education, and corporate sectors. Her approach promotes a deeper understanding of racial dynamics and cultural identity in workplaces and institutions.

TASMANIAN BUSINESSES PANEL: PATHWAYS TO INCLUSIVITY AND BELONGING

Tim Short	CEO, Adventure Patch
Kate Wittison	Human Resources Manager, Hotel Grand Chancellor Hobart
Justin Johnstone	Employment Consultant, Searson Buck

KEYNOTE: MARK HUNT CEO OF BLUELINE LAUNDRY “THE DIGNITY OF WORK: A UNIVERSAL PRINCIPLE FOR A DIVERSE SOCIETY”

Mark Hunt became the CEO of Blueline Laundry in July 2025, transitioning from his role as Chair of the Board. He is committed to Blueline's social enterprise mission and brings a background in leadership from education, sustainability, and complex operations. His focus is on building inclusive teams and strengthening community impact.
